Allen-Bailey Tag & Label Ranked Among Top Printers in U.S. and Canada

Caledonia, NY, February 23, 2017 – Allen-Bailey Tag & Label, Inc. has been named to the 2016 Printing Impressions 400 Who's Who in Printing list. In an announcement made by Printing Impressions Magazine in December 2016, the 106-year old tag and label company was listed in the 338th spot. In 2015, the company was no. 341.

Printing Impressions 400 provides the print industry's most comprehensive listing of leading companies in the United States and Canada, as ranked by annual sales volume. In the list's 33-year history, Allen-Bailey Tag & Label has been named numerous times.

"We are always pleased to earn this industry recognition," said company President Gene Tonucci. "Our niche in the print industry is very special to us and has given us the opportunity to develop deep relationships with customers in a wide array of markets, from Automotive, Manufacturing, and Hospitality to Uniform Rental."

What makes the recognition extra special to Tonucci and company owner Richard Phelps is the fact that several other Western New York printers are named to the list as well.

"There are many printers in this area and across the state who also make this list annually which means we belong to a very special subset of leading printers in the country," said Tonucci.

The geography that connects these local businesses links the history of the print industry to this region as well. That's because this area is home to the Erie Canal System which, followed by rail, enabled early industries like printing to grow, prosper and move West in the early 1900s. The innovations of the canal and rail systems also led to the development of Rochester becoming the home of Eastman Kodak – the Image Capital of the World -- and, later, the establishment of the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) becoming the print industry's hub.

As a veteran-owned company, Allen-Bailey remains among the largest manufacturers in Livingston County and employs 100 people in Caledonia, including staff in Massachusetts, Florida, and Illinois offices.
